Centre for Skills Excellence

In the process of establishing a centre of excellence, the institution can be elevated from "good" to "great" by providing expert trainers, researchers, facilities, and equipment. These centres will become a model of best practice in TVET and skills development.

This approach enables the new centre to raise training standard, boost productivity, address emerging skills gap and align training and research with industry needs.

Being a part of governance and management industry can financing, design training courses and/or provide equipment, facilities and trainer.
